DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' Amendment to claims 1, 2, 6, 7, and 15, filed 2/4/02, has been entered. Claims 1-32 are pending.

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-22, drawn to methods for producing cloned ungulates wherein both copies of IgM have been knocked out, and IgM knock-out ungulates classified in class 800, subclasses 8, 13, 14, 15, 21, 24.
- II. Claims 23-24, drawn to methods of making non-bovine antibodies classified in class 800, subclasses 4, 5, 6, class 530, subclass 387.1.
- III. Claims 25-28, drawn to methods of producing hybridomas, classified in class 530, subclass 387.1, 808; class 435, subclass 70.21, class 800, subclasses 4, 5, 6, for example
- IV. Claims 29-30, drawn to methods of expanding human B cells, classified in class 800, subclasses 4, 5, 6, class 435, subclasses 325, 326, for example.
- V. Claims 31-32, drawn to methods for maintaining desired tissues, organs, or cells in vivo, classified in class 800, subclass 4, for example.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and any of Inventions II-V are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the knock-out ungulates of Invention I can be used as a animal model for mutations in the IgM gene.

Inventions II and either of Inventions III-V are mutually exclusive and independent inventions. The methods of making non-bovine antibodies of Invention II are not required for the implementation of the methods for producing hybridomas of Invention III, the methods expanding human B cells of Invention IV, and the methods for maintaining desired tissues of Invention V, and vice versa. Furthermore, each of the methods requires a separate and materially different protocols, and different technical considerations.

Inventions III and either of Inventions IV or V are mutually exclusive and independent inventions. Furthermore, each of the methods requires a separate and materially different protocols, and different technical considerations.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
